Port of Melbourne appoints Shaun Mooney to lead commercial operations

Port of Melbourne has appointed Shaun Mooney to the role of Executive General Manager, Commercial, with oversight of Property and Business Development, reporting to Brendan Bourke, CEO.

Mr Mooney joins Port of Melbourne following a stint at Linfox as General Manager Commercial Projects, and 18 years at Toll Group, where he held a variety of commercial roles across the group, including Executive General Manager - Finance & Commercial – Toll Domestic Forwarding, and Global Head – Automotive & Industrials.

Brendan Bourke, CEO Port of Melbourne said Mr Mooney's deep commercial experience in global freight and logistics will bring valuable knowledge and insights to the Port's commercial operations.

"Shaun will play a vital role in helping us balance the challenges of our immediate operating environment with the long-term projects that will drive our growth."

Mr Bourke said Mr Mooney will bring expertise to the delivery of Port of Melbourne's strategic objectives, including optimising on-port productivity and providing increased on-port capacity to respond to demand growth.

Mr Mooney said he is excited to be joining Port of Melbourne at a time when supply chain infrastructure is front and centre of Australia's economic rebuild.

"Port of Melbourne has been critical in keeping Australia moving during this COVID pandemic, and it's clear it will play a vital role as we transition to post-COVID life.

"I'm thrilled to be bringing my experience in financial, commercial, operational and general management to Australia's largest capital city port," he said.

Mr Mooney will commence in the role on July 20.
